

Voyager Art & Tile Biography

Voyager Art and Tile is an art studio located in Red Deer, Alberta, Canada. Established artists Brian McArthur and Dawn Detarando started the company in 1999 after completing their Master of Fine Arts degrees and have been working together as a team for over 13 years. Together they have over 30 years of art making experiences.

Dawn and Brian collaborate to make Public Art and decorative ceramic tile works depicting Canada's flora, fauna and history and create these arts with a sense of life and romance. They are inspired by their natural surroundings and Canadian heritage. With a love of the environment and a goal to create beautiful objects, they create art meant for the gift market, interior design applications and public art spaces.

Their approach to making public art is set out in 3 major considerations: site specific, public accessibility and their own artistic vision and beauty. The work is responsive, combining interests of flora, fauna, history and a reflection of their urban and rural environments.

The goal of their work is to inspire and give respite to individuals and the public, giving one a sense of wonder and enlightenment in the imagery, encouraging laughter or seriousness through these moments.
